OIL TRUST PROBE STARTED BY U.S.

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

With what are the minds of the great and near great occupied?

Here are a couple that are worrying some of the boys at the city hall.

If a hunter draws a bead on a squirrel in a tree and every time he gets ready to pull the trigger the squirrel moves around the tree out of sight—and the hunter follows the nut gatherer around the tree until he has completely circled it—the tree—has he circled the squirrel?

Here's the other one: If a cannon ball traveling at the rate of 100 miles an hour is discharged from the rear of a train traveling at the same rate of speed in the opposite direction, how far apart will the train and the cannon ball be at the end of an hour?

Art and Dad are offering a couple of used building permits and we might add the stub of a pencil as prizes for the three best answers. At a late hour Mac added some shares in his famous wind deflector, to the prize list.

But you'd be surprised, the amount of argument those two questions can start. And the worst part of it is that it will be a month before the correct answers will be published in the publication that started all this. Then some of us intend to dispute the answers as given.

It is apparent without much thought that a great many of the attacks upon the prohibition laws are caused by those who don't use good common sense in trying to enforce it.

This is the time of the year when calendars are numerous around the office. Some of the walls are literally plastered with them. But it won't be long before some of them like the bottles that hung on the wall will start to disappear one by one and in about a month we'll be going out to buy one. And for the benefit of the person who took the Boy Scout one from our wall we might say that the culprit is known and if (he, she or it) knows to prevent prosecution it will be replaced at once. Somehow or other we had become attached to that particular date indicator.

Santa Cruz, and for that matter the entire state is stirred up over a charge that a woman, declared a suicide more than a year ago was really murdered. Many interesting angles are being developed in the case. There is also food for thought for officials who are prone to snap at suicide verdicts when they can't prevent an unsolved murder from blemishing their records. A clever criminal has but little trouble in making some murders look like suicide.

S. O., SHELL RICHFIELD IN QUIZ

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—UP—Secretaries and agents in 33 offices of oil companies on the Pacific coast will be asked to come to San Francisco for a federal grand jury inquiry into possible violation of anti-trust laws starting next Monday. It was revealed here today.

George J. Hatfield, United States attorney appeared in federal court to ask orders for the grand jury to convene Monday and remain in session until every detail is cleared up.

At the same time he received approval to call the 33 witnesses. They operate in Washington, Oregon, Arizona, Utah, New Mexico and California, he said.

Assistant Attorney General Amen is enroute here from Washington to take charge of the investigation to determine whether attempts have been made by any person to fix prices of gasoline, Hatfield said.

Included in the companies whose representatives have been asked to appear are Standard, Shell, Associated, General and Richfield.

They are requested to bring minutes of their board of directors meetings since June 1928 and specified the business letters.

MAYOR WANTED AT PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7.—Pittsburg, because the councilmen are shy at the position of mayor, is threatened with the tragedy of becoming a "mayor-less" city.

The council names the mayor from among its own members and as councilmen here draw no salary, the one of the quietest chosen, finds himself with an arduous task upon his hands. Of course he has the compensation of the title and the privilege to make "welcoming" speeches when civic affairs are held.

But this "privilege" does not seem to be wanted in Pittsburg, as Hugh Donovan, mayor for the past two years has announced his intention to relinquish the position and no other member of the council seems to want it.

Chicken Pox In County Reported

MARTINEZ, Jan. 7.—In the monthly report of Dr. I. O. Church, to the board of supervisors, it was revealed that chicken pox is quite widespread over Contra Costa county.

Continuing an inspection of schools started in November, the doctor anticipates that the data collected will be of considerable value in standardizing rural schools.

New Record For Noise Reported

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Distinction for making the most noise in San Francisco on New Year's Eve went to Walter Turner, 35, here today when he was convicted in police court for turning in 14 false fire alarms while celebrating advent of 1930.

Turner, the verdict said, jumped from box to box, covering a distance of approximately five miles from the waterfront to Golden Gate Park before being apprehended.

His actions opened the doors of 30 engine companies, 14 trucks and two fire boats. They also caused the fire of 16 fire chief officers.

CAPT. W. H. PARKER, skipper of the Olympic plans to retire after spending 47 years at sea. Captain Parker received a medal for rescuing a seaman when he was 16 years old. He served in the British navy during the war.

MEAD DEATH PROBE WILL OPEN MONDAY

SANTA CRUZ, Jan. 7.—(UP)—A grand jury investigation into the death of Mrs. Cora Mead, wife of a Chicago millionaire found dead here a year ago, will be opened Monday night.

Andrew J. Meagher, private detective, plans to reconstruct the slaying of Mrs. Mead by showing that she was beaten into unconsciousness and then shot by gunmen of a rum ring.

Mrs. Mead's death was officially pronounced suicide in 1928 by county officials here.

Meagher declared that he will not only prove suicide was possible, but that he will produce eye witnesses who saw two men leave Mrs. Mead's ranch home immediately after the sound of a shot was heard.

L. E. Curton, caretaker, who lived across the road from Mrs. Mead's home, will be one of the witnesses called and Sheriff N. P. Sinnott, Coroner W. R. Congdon, and L. A. Thornwell, with whom Mrs. Mead eloped from Chicago, will be subpoenaed to testify.

The investigation revealed today that Mrs. Mead was shot the same evening she had visited the office of U. S. Attorney George J. Hatfield in San Francisco.

This visit, Meagher believes, may have been the thing which precipitated her death. The woman did not inform on the alleged rum ring, Meagher said. Finding Hatfield out she informed a stenographer that she would return shortly. She died that night.

Naval Fliers Die In Crash

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Two navy aviators were killed instantly today when their plane went into a spin and landed in shallow water in San Diego bay near National City.

The cause of the mishap which sent the plane into its 2000 foot dive had not been determined.

The dead: Lieut. Eugene F. Burkett, Coronado.

Ensign John D. Clark, San Diego.

The two aviators took off from Rockwell field in a practice flight 15 minutes before the accident. They apparently made no effort to parachute to safety.

ONE INJURED IN GAS BLAST

Earl Hiles, 32, of 15 Third street, an employee of the Pacific Gas and Electric company is in the Hospital Richmond; his face badly burned and his eyes injured as the result of an accident Monday morning.

Hiles, who is a meter reader, went to a home at 5608 Barrett avenue Monday after a complaint had been made that the pilot light in a gas furnace had gone out.

Hiles went into the basement of the home and attempted to repair the damage.

Officials of the P. G. and E. stated that the pilot light had been out for several hours and as a result the gas had collected in the furnace. When Hiles attempted to light it, the gas exploded.

Flames struck him in the face and dust accumulated in the furnace was blown into Hiles' eyes.

He was rushed to Hospital Richmond where he was treated by Dr. L. Abbott Hedges.

Hiles, who is married, has been working for the gas company for several years.

MURDER HINT IN SLAYING OF RANCHER

SANTA ROSA, Jan. 7.—UP—A ranch worker, at first believed to have been a suicide, was shot through the head by an unknown murderer at Cloverdale sometime Saturday, it was learned today.

Lawrence Wherston, 22, the dead man, was slain by an assailant who fired a rifle bullet into Wherston's head at close range, according to Sonoma county officials.

Coroner Fred Young refused to accept the suicide theory because of two blood-soaked handkerchiefs found in Wherston's cabin. He had the rifle found beside the body sent to Santa Rosa for examination by a fingerprint expert.

Today Sheriff Douglas Bills and Fingerprint Expert Leo Simpson pronounced the fingerprints on the rifle as those of someone other than the dead man.

An inquest will be held tomorrow. The dead man came to this section of the state about six weeks ago.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Contract for the construction of borings in San Francisco bay for a bridge between San Francisco and Alameda counties today was awarded the Duncan-Harrelson company of San Francisco.

The contract price was announced as $26,329.30. Work was ordered by B.B. Meek, Director of the department of Public Works and awarded of the contract, to start at once.

The borings will be completed within two months if weather conditions permit, officials of the Duncan-Harrelson company said.

The work is being done to secure information which will be presented to the joint commission recently appointed by President Herbert Hoover and Gov. C. C. Young to take charge of the bay bridge project, Meek announced.

The borings will determine practicability of various sites under consideration and will furnish data upon which an estimated cost of the completed bridge can be based, Meek said.

The $26,329.30 which the contract guarantees the San Francisco company was furnished from contributions received from citizens of San Francisco.

ERRORS COST LIFE OF FIVE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Tragic error of a storekeeper, who sold Donald Kleusner gasoline when he asked for kerosene, was blamed tonight for the deaths of Kleusner and four other members of his family.

Only survivors of the blast earlier in the day when Kleusner poured the gasoline on his living room stove were the six-months old Kleusner twins. Both were expected to die.

The dead: Donald Kleusner, Sr., 31. Mrs. Hatlie Kleusner, 25. Mary Alice Kleusner, 5. Donald Kleusner, Jr., 3.

When Kleusner dropped the gasoline in the stove, it flared up and covered him and three of his children, sleeping on a davenport nearby, in flames. Mrs. Kleusner hurried to their rescue, but was so badly burned that she also died.

Officials said that Kleusner probably purchased the gasoline at a filling station or store nearby in the belief that he was buying kerosene, much less explosive.

Walnut Creek To Support Bonds Of New High School

WALNUT CREEK, Jan. 7.—A resolution in favor of a "moderate bond issue," to alleviate crowded conditions in the Concord high school, was last night adopted by the Walnut Creek chamber of commerce.

The recent $350,000 bond issue was vigorously opposed by Walnut Creek residents, and was overwhelmingly defeated.

Contingent upon agreement that Walnut Creek district children will be accommodated in the Concord school for the next five years, the motion was adopted. The agreement was contained in a report to the chamber by a committee that conferred with the high school trustees.

Bonds totaling $75,000 were suggested as adequate for the Concord school enlargement.

ITALY READY TO WITNESS WEDDING OF FUTURE KING

ROME, Jan. 7.—UP—The Pope gave his blessing and 5000 Italian provincials poured out homage in a marvelous pageant today to Marie Jose, the 23-year old Belgian princess who married Crown Prince Humberto Wednesday.

Tonight the pale princess and the dark prince attended a final formal function—a royal reception at Quirinal Palace—in a round of ceremonies preceding the wedding in the Pauline chapel.

The princess said she was "immensely happy" to receive the Pope's blessing on the eve of her marriage. She was almost swept from her feet, a confused but smiling picture in white and silver lace as the Provincial folklore procession passed before her.

Most touching were the welcomes from the common people.

"With others of the Belgian royal party she motored to the Quirinal between lanes of Italian troops.

King Albert and the Belgian princess were in military green uniform; Marie Jose, Princess Astrid and Queen Elizabeth wore black attire and veils in keeping with the Pope's edict for modesty in dress.

King Albert and the Belgian princess were in military green uniform; Marie Jose, Princess Astrid and Queen Elizabeth wore black attire and veils in keeping with the Pope's edict for modesty in dress.

Pope Receives Party

The Pope received the king and queen separately, then saw Marie Jose, Princess Astrid and Princess Leopold and Charles.

Masters of stage settings would have despaired had they witnessed the folklore procession which later found from the Central Military barracks of Rome to the Quirinal, where the royal families waited in a special grandstand.

Peasants drawn from 18 provinces took part with a complete lack of self-consciousness and brought the breath of their unsplendid country life.

Brilliant Pageant
Four hundred horses, asses and oxen were used by the marchers to re-enact the centuries-old life of their provinces. Doves were loosed in front of the royal grandstand. Four or five of these classical "doves of Venus" flew toward the princess and Humberto and his entourage seized two and handed them to her. She kissed the birds and threw them into the air amid the cheers of the throng.

Italy, as she has survived thru the strife of centuries was arrayed before Marie Jose in the pageant. The princess saw Italy of the fields and of ancient tradition, each group danced or sang songs on approaching the royal tribunal.

Tonight there was a brilliant court reception.

FITTS GIVEN ADDRESS OF WITNESS

United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1930 by United Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Fifteen hours after the United Press found and interviewed Henry Peavey, sought as a witness in the William Desmond Taylor murder case, the present address of the man was made public.

District Attorney Byron Fitts, Los Angeles, was informed tonight by the United Press that Peavey, who claims he knows the murderer of Taylor, is now living in a two-room apartment in the rear of a house at 417 M street, Sacramento.

It was at that address that Homer L. Roberts and Harvey Wing, United Press correspondents, found and interviewed the young negro who was Taylor's personal servant when the motion picture director was murdered in his Hollywood bungalow in February, 1922.

Second Witness
Peavey is the second "key" witness in the eight-year old murder mystery who has been located and interviewed this week by the United Press. The first was Otis Hefner, former Folsom convict who was paroled when prison officials feared for his life after he had made revelations concerning the Taylor murder.

The whereabouts of Hefner, known only to his family and to the United Press, will be given to Fitts upon request but the time being will not be made public.

In general, the two heretofore missing "key" witnesses told the same story, each was asked: "Do you know who murdered William Desmond Taylor?" and each gave the name of a motion picture celebrity.

COUNTY HITS BUS PERMITS

MARTINEZ, Jan. 7.—On direction of the board of supervisors District Attorney A. B. Tinning, will oppose applications of two motor bus operators now before the railroad commission, to operate Contra Costa county lines.

Hearing of the application of the Consolidated Motor Transport company, asking permission to operate motor freight line from Oakland via the Tunnel highway to Walnut Creek, Concord, Bay Point and Pittsburg will be held at Walnut Creek on Feb. 7. Hearing of application of Beverly Gibson, who seeks extension of a Sacramento to Bay Point service to Walnut Creek and Oakland will be held at Walnut Creek, Jan. 14.

The supervisors have been particularly strenuous in their opposition to bus or motor freight lines operating over the Tunnel highway. They contend that the nature of the road, with its many turns, would present an extra hazard if motor buses were permitted to run over it.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

What Makes Modern Woman Modern?

IT WAS between a smile and a sigh that thoughtful women read, the other day, about the self-proclaimed "modern" sister, nineteen-year-old Hattie Byrnes, of Queens.

Who in court excused herself for bigamy. By explaining to the judge that "everybody's doing it"—And that she just had to be modern!

"I'm a modern girl," she insisted. "And the modern girl does not want to be tied down to any one man all her life."

Neither we, reflecting on this naive defense, did Helen of Troy or Cleopatra—Women many centuries from "modern."

Nor, for that matter, have the innumerable members of the oldest profession in the world cared to be "tied down to one man."

No—really—it takes more than a fancy for changing partners.

To qualify a woman as "modern"—A fact which General Sessions Judge Bertini emphasized, when he sentenced Hattie to six months in the penitentiary.

He pointed out that she is no victim of modernity—define the modern woman's modernity—Let the definition stand!

NO! NO! Oh, how I hate the words, "No! No!" I hear them morning, noon and night.

Whatever I say, wherever I go, And if I play or if I fight, No, don't do this, and don't do that, And don't, say, "Boo!" And don't say, "Scat!"

There's nothing I can do, I climb a tree, I sail a boat, Or play the games that I would like, Take off my hat, put on my coat, Or go and ride my scooter-bike.

It's, oh, "No! No!" You mustn't, dear, "No! No!" Don't go away from here, "It's very late, bedtime is near!" There's nothing I can do.

It's hard upon my teddy bear, It makes me cross with him, If he should ever come day dare To play football or swim—

I'll say, "No! No!" You mustn't run, "Or race or have a bit of fun, "It's naughty, and it can't be done!" There's nothing he can do!

Speaking before the House of Commons, the Duchess of Atholl has just denounced the cruel customs of African weddings. In an English or American wedding, the chief victim of cruelty is usually the father of the bride—suffering through his pocket nerve.

MAGDALEN SPEAKS I bought for me a new gown—Its color is of red—So I may woo new lovers, Although my love is dead.

And some shall call me wanton, Because I freely give, Not knowing it's the ghost of me, For I have ceased to live.

THE STRONGER SEX Decisions on what the well-dressed man will wear next year are to be handed down by America's supreme court of dress—the National Merchant Tailors' Association of America—which convenes in Chicago, Jan. 28, for a four-day session.—U. P. news dispatch.

And still men wonder why women submit to fashion's stern decrees!

Winter Umbrellas UMBRELLAS vary in size and length accordingly as they are to be carried in town or country, or are to be packed by the traveler.

The very finest one ever designed for the woman's use, it is decidedly short of ferrule and has a long strap handle.

Crested wood and composition handles are conservatively modeled or as curious as one desires. Very lovely on the umbrella of black or rich color is the use of simulated crystal.

WELSH RAREBIT One tablespoon butter One half pound well-cured cheese One-third teaspoon salt One-fourth teaspoon mustard Dash of cayenne One-half cup near beer or milk One egg

Make a double boiler of the grill pan. Put in butter and when melted add the cheese, chopped fine, and the seasonings. As the cheese melts add the near beer or milk gradually, while stirring constantly. Add the egg, slightly beaten, and serve at once on crisp crackers or thin toast.

STICK SANDWICHES Prepare plain buttered sandwiches of fresh bread. Press tightly together and cut in one-half inch lengths, removing crusts.

HEARTS OF FENNEL Fennel is a delicately flavored vegetable somewhat resembling celery. It is prepared and served like hearts of celery.

COFFEE Put four or eight cups of water, according to the number of cups of coffee desired into the percolator. Put the equivalent number of rounding tablespoons of coffee into the strainer. Cover, connect to an outlet and percolate ten to twenty minutes, according to the strength preferred.

Modernizing the Home—Making the Attic Room Livable

By Alma Zaiss

Dear Madam: I am about to move into a new apartment, where I can have this big attic room all to myself. This is something I have always wanted, and because it means so much to me I would appreciate your comments on arrangement of the furnishings.

As time goes on I plan to make artistic additions to what I now have, particularly in the Oriental line.

Would it be all right to have the walls a bright shade of yellow, with woodwork, dull blue and the floor black, with a rug in shades of ochre to Chinese red?

Please do my request seriously and do not let me down.

Yours truly, (Mr.) R. H.

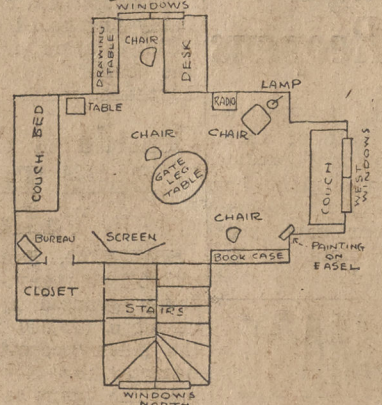

A Colorful Scheme for the Man's Apartment

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

WHEN we have finished with today's problem, many readers may wonder why it was necessary to treat this man's letter in detail, since so few changes were needed to perfect the scheme already planned by him. But therein lies the point of the discussion.

The ideas expressed in this letter, the original arrangement, Mr. H.'s sense of just what is necessary for comfortable living—and just what is not—seem so remarkable in one untrained in the art of home-making that they constitute a very wholesome lesson in decoration. It is good for all to note the skill with which a mere man can get together a home. Better still to see the genuine pleasure with which he accepts his unpretentious quarters in the big attic which, to many a woman, would seem to present a difficult problem.

A comparison of the two floor plans will show the slight changes in arrangement suggested. We would move the easy chair beside the radio to a better position near the couch in the window alcove; center the radio on the small wall and turn the chair by the bookshelves so that it, too, becomes part of this group. We assume this chair is a small one, and it so suggest that it be exchanged for another easy chair beside which an end table and lamp could be used. The room really needs two deep, tufted chairs. Moving the gateleg table down a bit further into the living end of the room lends further to complete this section, and gives a pleasing unity to the room. If at all possible, we recommend that the picture be removed from the easel and hung on the wall above the big couch. And the bureau should be moved straight against the wall, or if it is a low chest of drawers, it may be turned around and used as an end piece at the foot of the couch where it could hold a lamp, a few books and perhaps an old lacquered box in which to keep personal belongings pertaining to the toilet.

It may be that to place the bureau in any other position than that shown on the original plan would interfere with the opening of the closet door.

AS MUCH COMFORT AND BEAUTY AS A MAN COULD DESIRE IS TUCKED AWAY IN THIS COMPANIONABLE CORNER, WHICH COULD BE ADOPTED, WITH VARIATIONS, TO SUIT MR. H.'S ATTIC ROOM.

If so, the door could be removed and the opening curtained with some rich, heavy fabric that is plain in color or self-colored. If the door is without sides or ends, its placement back in the corner instead of centered against the wall is correct, for this position gives it the feeling of permanence and support.

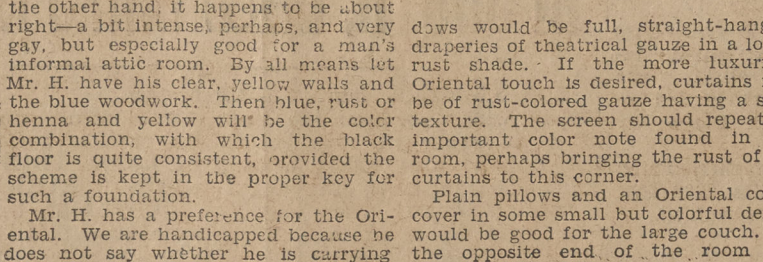

The desk alcove is quite all right as arranged at present, and both window ledges should be made as effective as possible with plants in smart pots or bowls.

The corner of the room illustrated—a picture from that remarkable book of "1000 Ideas" by Koch—shows a most interesting arrangement that could be adapted for the east alcove when a change from the present plan is desired. In the picture the scheme is far from Oriental, but it is so sturdy and masculine in its suggestion, so altogether homelike and livable that it will bear close study. There is nothing more confidential than a table drawn up before broad windows with comfortable upholstered seats built against the encircling walls. The banded treatment of the alcove is also particularly appropriate for the attic room.

Even to the man's coat hanging carelessly across the top of one chair, we love this simple but effective setting.

By this time the feminine readers are fidgeting to get to the color scheme which they just know is altogether wrong as Mr. H. has planned it. On the other hand, it happens to be about right—a bit intense, perhaps, and very gay, but especially good for a man's informal attic room. By all means let Mr. H. have his clear, yellow walls and the blue woodwork. Then blue, rust or henna and yellow will be the color combination with which the room, perhaps bringing the rust of the curtains to this corner.

Plain pillows and an Oriental couch cover in some small but colorful design would be good for the large couch. At the opposite end of the room the smaller couch should be covered in plain fabric; a rich rust-colored cotton velvet would be both inexpensive and durable for the purpose. The two easy chairs might be covered with a yellow and blue material in a basket weave pattern such as one finds among the modern fabrics. Design can be brought to this end of the room through the use of a table cover of Turkish or Egyptian embroidery in harmonious colors on a cream ground.

Lamps should have simple brass and copper bases and rather plain parchment shades. The fewer the ornaments in this gay scheme the better. Pots of brass and copper for the plants, with here and there a potted bowl of deep blue or green; smart smoking accessories, these, with the many-colored book bindings, will furnish all the interest needed for the room.

While the background of color Mr. H. has suggested is excellent for the Oriental scheme, it is also ideal for a modern treatment. With the yellow walls and blue woodwork a modern rug on the jet black floor would be very good looking. We have in mind a certain camel-hair rug in creamy beige tones with a conservative design in copper, brown, ivory and black. The same henna gauze curtains could be used for the modern scheme; a tufted fabric in copper tones for the large couch with pillows of plain blue and black; rust velvet for the small couch; the same blue and yellow basket weave fabric for the easy chairs. The screen, lamps and potted plants should all be conservative models, and the picture above the couch should be fairly sympathetic with the scheme.

If Mr. H. has come so well in his plans sans feminine assistance, we think to know it would prove extremely encouraging to both men and women readers. Will Mr. H. answer us on this?

These four new shades of powders, blended scientifically by the experts of the leading beauty experts, are matched to perfection with four shades in hosiery. Thus it is simple to have the face, arms, neck and stockings all in a natural sun tinted hue.

Should a woman be dubious as to her individual type, charts have been worked out whereby she can guide herself in the selection of both powders and hosiery. And in each box of stockings a sample of powder is placed to simplify the art of acquiring an out-of-door health glow.

Feminine Negligees FOLLOWING the lines of evening gowns, negligees have become so alluring and feminine that they outrival the popular pajama ensembles. Silk velvets, heavily bordered in rich lace for contrast, sleek satin shirred at the sleeves and about the figure, brocades with lustrous and exquisite coloring, delicate silk crepes, quilted crepes and velvets, make a great appeal to the gift buyer.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 7.—Warfare waged against the drunken driver continuously during 1929 by state traffic officers resulted in the revocation of the driving licenses of 708 persons for the period of one year or more.

This was announced here today by officials of the California Highway Patrol who said drunken driving exceeded all other causes of revocation being responsible for nearly two-thirds of all revocations for the year.

The records show 1,162 persons in all were given official invitations to put their cars away for a year and try walking for a change.

Ninety-eight of these were involved in reckless driving charges. There were 159 licenses canceled at the request of parents or guardians, the new motor vehicle act giving parents and guardians the right to evade responsibility for the acts of children by asking that licenses be cancelled.

Declaring the drunken driver is the most dangerous type of criminal on the road today, F. G. Snook, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles, who launched the war on such drivers more than two years ago, has requested Eugene W. Biscailuz, superintendent of the patrol, to continue every effort to get such drivers off the road.

KING ALFONSO OF SPAIN MAY ABDICATE IN DICTATOR ROW

By John De Gandt
United Press Staff Correspondent
MADRID, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—As a result of six years and four months under a dictatorship, Spain is reaching a crucial turn which some circles believe may lead possibly, among other things, to the abdication of King Alfonso.

To understand how the political situation evolved to such an extent, it is necessary to consider the causes of the dictatorship, especially the situation that favored its establishment, and then review the succession of facts.

Two of the main difficulties under the old regime in 1923 were first, a costly war in Morocco against Moors who had rebelled against implantation of a Spanish protectorate; secondly, social disorders in many parts of Spain, reaching a climax in the Barcelona region where workers were assassinated, banks raided, and bombs thrown by anarchists almost daily.

Dictator Supported
Primo De Rivera, captain-general of the Barcelona region since March, 1922, decided to take matters into his own hands. Supported by several other military chiefs disgusted with the inefficient methods of previous governments, he issued a pronouncement on Sept. 13, 1923, equivalent to a proclamation of military dictatorship. Two days later the King, who always has said he did not know De Rivera's plans, swore him in as president of a military directory, an act tantamount, on the surface, to throwing his own fate into the dictator's hands.

Since De Rivera's manifesto outlined a program to restore order, justice and law, the King frequently made plain that he thought it the best solution and for that reason accepted it.

The military directory hurriedly started work, because De Rivera had ventured to limit his task to less than one month. Yet evidence that the new regime surely would last longer arose when the first decrees the dictator had Alfonso sign were the dissolution of Parliament and suspension of the constitution.

Heavy Task
The task the General had imposed on himself proved much greater than expected, especially that part having to do with ending the Moroccan war. De Rivera's iron hand quickly stopped the interior troubles, forcing separatists at Barcelona, Bilbao and elsewhere into silence, but it was not until two years later, and partly because of an agreement with the French for combined operations in Morocco, that the campaign succeeded and the Rifian leader, Abd El Krim, was defeated.

Two further years were necessary to complete pacification of the Spanish zone in Morocco.

Returning to Madrid after having spent considerable time in Morocco as high commissioner, De Rivera strove for a political regeneration of the country. It proceeded so slowly that in December, 1925, the King agreed to change the military dictatorship into a civil one. This did not alter the fact that a dictatorship remained and was steadily gaining power.

Plot Unearthed
Some politicians, who so far had limited themselves to refusing any contact with the dictatorship allied themselves with military factions who disapproved of De Rivera's methods, and in June, 1926, there was unearthed a plot involving persons as prominent as Captain General Valeriano Meyler and Lient Gen. Francisco Aguilera. Meyler had earned fame during the Spanish campaigns in Cuba and the Philippines and Aguilera was former president of the supreme court.

Still more serious was an artillery revolt in September of the same year, which started chiefly over some officers' dissatisfaction with a decree regulating promotion. No blood was shed, however, and the King's intervention avoided further immediate trouble.

Both affairs, nevertheless, demonstrated that the dictators could no longer count on the support of a certain faction of the army. Luckily for him, although he is 15 years older than Mussolini, he always reached so quickly against his opponents that in most cases he upset their plans. Likely they would have overthrown him had they not wasted time preparing and had they been in complete accord.

Assembly Created
Benefitting by the general political apathy after governing for four years, the premier was able to get the King to sign a decree creating the so-called National Consultative Assembly in September, 1927. The group was instructed to prepare for a return to a constitutional regime through a reform of the 1876 constitution. All assembly members were appointed by the government, a fact that speaks for itself.

The assembly worked until July, 1929, but the project for a new constitution to supplant the one under suspension was so violently opposed in all quarters that public discussion was postponed and the project finally was abandoned.

Revolt Fails
Once more political opponents of the dictator, led by the voluntary exile, former Premier Jose Sanchez Guerra, carefully prepared a revolt movement at the end of January, 1929, with the support of military elements at Valencia and Ciudad Real. Because of a leaky boat which delayed Sanchez Guerra's arrival to lead the movement the effort failed. Still the conspiracy, coupled with serious student disturbances in the following March, gave a distinct impression that the dictatorship was weakening.

De Rivera's announcement one day that he would remain in power another year, followed a week later by his declared intention to stay indefinitely if necessary, was interpreted in the same way as an ordinary grandfather's wish to live 200 years.

Guerra Acquitted
The acquittal of Sanchez Guerra by a court martial, despite the fact that he declared himself guilty of framing the revolt, was a direct hint by the army that De Rivera should go.

Two thirds of the press, over which censorship was losing control, abandoned the Premier. Yet after lengthy cabinet meetings and several talks with the King in an ultimate attempt to gain time for fear of the future, De Rivera announced a few days later he would continue in power another half year or until June, 1930.

Martinez Auto Theft Suspect Held In Mont.
MARTINEZ, Jan. 7.—Awaiting the arrival of a Martinez officer to return him here, George A. McGee of Martinez is being held at the Deer Lodge penitentiary in Montana on a charge of grand theft.

McGee is alleged to have stolen an automobile from Emmett Smyth, a former automobile dealer here, on Oct. 23, 1928, and to have abandoned it in Portland, Ore. He was arrested in Montana for automobile theft there and sentenced to prison.

Recently paroled, authorities here were advised of the parole and notified Montana officials to hold McGee until an officer arrived.

McGee was released on parole from San Quentin after serving a term for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and there is a possibility that he may be returned there as a parole violator.

Student Body Here Urged To Change Policy

A representative form of government was advocated for the Students association of the Richmond Union high school yesterday by B. X. Tucker, principal of the high school. At present all matters pertaining to the association are brought up and voted upon immediately in meetings of the organization. Under the new method of government, all suggestions will be made in small advisory groups. Representatives will be elected from each of these smaller groups and the matters will be decided in the student council of 40.

Tucker also outlined the budget of the Students association for the term. Added expense, Tucker pointed out, will have to be met because of Richmond Union high school's entrance into the Alameda County Athletic league.

The students voted in favor of listening to the weekly Standard Oil school broadcast each Thursday.

Byron Young occupied the presidential chair yesterday for the first time, and Young urged the students to become members of the Student Body. The past president of the organization is Walter Thomas.

COAST LEAGUE SEES GOOD SEASON

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—UP—Outstanding of minor circuits for graduating stars to major baseball clubs, the Pacific Coast league produces its usual optimism for a good season this year.

"The prospect is that all teams of the league will be better balanced," Richard "Nick" Williams, manager of the San Francisco Seals, summed up his predictions. Although practices will not start for two months, a majority of the managers on the coast have been satisfied in lining up most of their regulars.

Most Fortunate
The Seals, Oakland, Hollywood, Los Angeles and San Francisco Missions appear to be most fortunate.

In the remaining three, Portland seems to be in the best position. Seattle, which finished in the cellar last season, has been strengthened. The Sacramento Senators are faced by the most muddled situation in their history.

After a disastrous year financially, Lewis Moreing, owner of the Senators, announced he wanted to sell. He is asking $300,000 for the club and it is reported Bert Neuhaufl, formerly of the Coast league and Charles Lockhart, Long Beach, former owner of the Seattle club, Moreing went to Chattanooga in December to secure players but failed to get any.

Sheiks Ready
The Hollywood Sheiks, winners of the pennant in 1929, are ready to present what is claimed to be a fine team to beat as the team that defeated the Missions in the playoff for the title banner. Their manager, Oscar Vitt, plans to strengthen the outfield with new men and bolster his pitching staff before he engages in first practice with the Chicago Cubs on April 5.

The Missions, under leadership of Wade "Red" Kilmer, will present practically the same lineup as closed the last season. Officials of the team characterize the outlook as "exceptionally good." Players for Oakland will have new owners and manager when they take the field. The club was purchased last winter by A. R. Miller, V. Devincenzi and Carl Zamloch. The latter will manage.

Zamloch Hopeful
"We hope to end the first year in the first division," Zamloch said. "I have been getting a group of players who will die fighting and won't stop playing their hardest if they are behind."

Main worries of Jack Lelivelt, skipper for the Los Angeles Angels are "two southpaws, a right hander and a catcher" that he believes he needs.

Williams said he has high hopes of the Seals finishing "one-two-three."

"We will have the most colorful team in the league again and most likely will draw best of any team while on the road," he claimed.

Northern Teams
Larry Woodall, catcher, will be at the helm of the Portland Beavers. His team has a number of versatile players but needs a few more specialists.

Seattle, under management of Eddie Johnson, who will probably play second base part of the time, would like another infielder, a center fielder, and more pitchers. Its new material is mostly of unknown ability when the test of the Coast league is considered.

FREAK FOOTBALL PLAYS

By Will B. Johnstone

Here is a football freak—the world's record drop kick made by one Patrick J. O'Dea of the University of Wisconsin on Nov. 15, 1898. All drop kicks measuring over 60 yards are usually called monstrosities by opponents and rightly so, because only four have been made in the history of inter-collegiate football.

In the sixty-odd years of American football only four men have drop kicked 60 yards or over. J. T. Haxall of Princeton is credited with a 65-yard kick against Yale in 1882; M. Payne of Dakota rooted one for 64 yards in 1913 and the late lamented George Gipp of Notre Dame dropped one over from 62 yards in 1916 which, with Pat O'Dea's 63-yard classic, completes the list.

O'Dea runs second in the record books, but that's where the break comes in. Wisconsin was playing Northwestern at Evanston, Ill. The writer then a small boy, had just crawled under the fence to see the game. The home team had held Wisconsin on the 55-yard line, the middle of the field in those days. The Badgers were forced to kick and O'Dea dropped back, apparently to punt. Now O'Dea was a kicker. He had come to this country with his brother, Andy O'Dea, coach of the Wisconsin crew, from Australia, where he had starred at rugby.

Young Pat had a frankish form in kicking. He swung his leg sideways like Charlotte Greenwood's celebrated stage kick, describing a complete arc. Imagine Northwestern's surprise when, instead of punting, O'Dea swung his long leg from behind his neck till it came up under his chin, drop kicking the ball over the goal posts 63 yards away.

Haxall may lead O'Dea by two yards in the record book, Payne may have tied him with a 64-yard kick, but here's the freak that was overlooked O'Dea's drop kick not only cleared the goal posts squarely, it traveled 20 yards past them and was actually an 83-yard kick.

Bowler Sets New Record

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Making of new and better endurance records for 1930 started early this year when George Kender, small, bald-headed, core armed, completed 50 continuous hours today of tossing a bowling ball about.

Since early Sunday, Kender has hurled a bowling ball every thirty seconds down the alleys. One by one his 16 competitors dropped out until finally none but the redoubtable Kender was left.

His back stooped, his thumb swollen, his eyes bleary and his knees wobbly, Kender signed a mighty sigh, and played one more game just to prove his endurance.

Two hundred and sixty-one games he bowled in a fraction over 50 hours. And then he went to bed.

GREAT SHIRES WINS AGAIN

ST. PAUL, Jan. 7.—UP—C. Arthur "The Great" Shires, gave vent to his inherent antipathy toward baseball managers tonight by knocking out Tony "The Invincible" Faeth, in the first round of a scheduled six round bout.

After only two minutes and ten seconds of vicious slugging the battling Chicago White Sox's infielder sent a smashing to Faeth's jaw dropping him prone. The invincible was carried to his corner and not revived for several minutes.

The knockout punch started near Shire's knees, traveled in a wide arc and finally reached its mark.

"I don't have to fight crooked bouts," Shires declared. "You can see that by what happened tonight."

PRESBYTERIANS, COMMUNITY CAGERS WINNERS IN LEAGUE

The First Presbyterian cagers went into a tie for second place with the First Methodists by defeating the Methodists 22 to 12 last night in the A division contest on last night's Y. M. C. A. Church league card. The Community Methodists pushed into the lead in the B division by defeating the Grace Lutherans 18 to 15.

The First Methodists were not up to par last night, partly because of several changes in their lineup. Two of the speediest Methodist cagers, Carl Drexel and Ugo Boschetti are unable to play any longer with the church team as they are now members of the Richmond Union high school squad. The Presbyterians showed remarkable speed last night and constantly bombarded the Methodist bucket.

The B game was probably the most spirited contest on last night's card. Both teams played hard, fast basketball throughout every quarter, and the final result was in doubt until the last whistle blew. The score board read 9 to 6 in favor of the Community Methodists at half time, and at the end of the third period, the score stood 15 to 12 in favor of the Methodists. The Methodists gained their next points near the beginning of the last quarter, but were unable to gain another counter before the game ended.

The First Christians will clash with the First Baptists at 8:15 Friday night, while the San Pablo Baptists will meet the St. Edmund's quintet of the B division at 7:15.

First Game
Presbyterians 22—L. Goldsworthy, Spres 4, forwards; L. Bowman 8, center; Morrison 9, Buchanan 1, guards; substitute Lemon center.

Methodists 12—Jewell 1, Poole 1, forwards; R. Black 6, center; B. Black 4, Jenkins, guards.

Second Game
Community Methodists 18—Hillier 5, Woods 4, forwards; Plumm 3, center; Johnson 4, Robertson, guards; substitute Neeley 2, forward.

Lutherans 15—Hampshire 6, Gillan 2, forwards; Rasich 3, center; Wakefield 2, Mariolu, guards; Baldrich 2, forward.

CARD GRIDDERS TO NAME HEAD

The 28 men who will be allowed to vote were those players on last season's team who yesterday were presented with block letters.

Presentation of the letters was made at a meeting of the Student's Executive council.

RUTH, YANKEES START SALARY HAGGLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—UP—The battle over Babe Ruth's new contract started unexpectedly today when the big ball player visited the Yankee offices and was closeted for two hours with Ed Barrow, the club's business manager.

"It looks like a long drawn out debate," grumbled the Babe when he emerged.

"Now, we didn't get anywhere. Contract or no contract, I'm going to Florida Saturday to play golf and start getting into shape."

Ruth vs. Ruppert
The argument over the home king's wages for 1930 and succeeding years will boil down eventually to one between Ruth and Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees. Barrow as business manager submitted a preliminary proposition to the Babe and then went to report to his boss.

A two year contract offered Ruth by Barrow did not meet the famous ball player's demands in two particulars:

The contract called for what the Babe considers an insufficient increase over his salary of $70,000 a year which he has received for the past three seasons.

Ruth Insists
It did not contain concessions in the matter of exhibition games upon which Ruth is prepared to insist.

As far as the matter of dollars is concerned, Babe and Colonel Ruppert probably can come to terms without much difficulty. There has been talk of the home-run king holding out for $100,000 a year, but Babe has his tongue in his cheek when he mentions that figure.

The contract offered by Barrow called for $75,000 a year for two years, and Ruth thinks he can do better than that.

Ruth's counter proposal asked for a salary of $85,000 for three years and was temporarily rejected by the Yankees.

High Cagers Play Hayward January 16

The varsity, B and C games will be played at night time. A large delegation of Richmond Union high school rooters are planning to accompany the local quintets to Hayward to see the first game of the Alameda County Athletic league in which Richmond high will participate.

The game has been arranged in order to offer the local high school athletes a chance to put their basketball knowledge to test before entering the Alameda league.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically, and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS
In jazzed New York, unable to find a job as violinist, Ted Molnar is forced to play jazz as a saxophonist in a Hungarian Cafe. His father disowns Ted for playing the jazz he so despises. When his wife sympathizes with Ted, the father leaves home. The public is captivated by Ted's individual style. Gail Wilson, his employer, Mr. Abrams, help Ted to organize a band act of his own and induce him to engage as a dancer. Lena Schmidt, his Budapest sweetheart who had received him so coldly in New York, tests him to see if he really loves her and Gail, whom he now loves sincerely, is jealous. Lena quits the act and Gail goes on in her place, but refuses to listen to Ted's explanation. Mrs. Molnar clears up the situation. Lena discovers Ted's father working as a sweeper at Carnegie Hall and reveals upon him to see Ted whose jazz band is playing on the stage.

INSTALLMENT XXV
"They are beautiful," she said, "and such exquisite handwork! Why, Gail, you must have been thinking about him for they must have taken weeks to make." Gail blushed and replied, "They were weeks in the making and of course I was thinking about him! Every stitch represents a love thought for Ted—I thought of him every minute and then when I went to sleep I dreamt about him!" Mrs. Molnar looked at Gail. She saw a very beautiful young woman, fragile and slender, with the unmistakable stamp of refinement and good breeding in the finely chiseled features, and long sensitive fingers. It was not hard to understand and one being very fond of her, she was a very attractive person. Her sense of fairness, her generosity and interest in things outside herself

"You were the mechanical means in a sense—but, my dear girl, you were far more than that. You were his incentive—his inspiration—the real reason for his success which he wanted and worked so diligently and tirelessly for. It has been a very clear to me the paths of a genius trying to make his genius known—under the added hardships of having to earn his own living, as well as that of his parents is the rockiest road in the world to travel. So many of these and some of the people are literally starving—they could be of such benefit to themselves and give so much to the world if only someone would help them—give them a chance to start! It is so rare nowadays, when one finds someone who is a kindly enough—or who will—do what you Americans say, 'give them a break.'" And Mrs. Molnar laughed at the realization that she was fast learning the "very odd expressions of the Americans."

The doorbell rang sharply. Mrs. Molnar whispered to Gail, pointing to another room. "Go in there, child—I want to surprise him!" and the girl hurried quietly into the bedroom.

Ted seemed so exultant as he kissed his mother, that she was somewhat surprised, but glad to know that his spirits were higher than they had been.

"Have you been up to any mischief while I've been gone. Mother?"

"Plenty, young man," she answered with a twinkle in her eye. "And you?"

"Well, I guess I have, too," Ted said happily. "I've got someone with me! Just a minute, Mother, and I'll show you." Ted went into the hallway and brought back his father, who humbly approached his wife.

Mrs. Molnar wiped her eyes—this must be an illusion—her breaking heart had finally done what she feared it might do—affected her mind! Again the poor woman wiped her eyes—this time harder than before.

"Father?" she almost screamed as they clasped each other tightly. "Father, is it really you? Shall I pinch myself—oh—I have waited and waited for this moment! It has seemed unbearable, my heart has been breaking—and the tears I have shed—" and as if to prove her words the large drops of water began to well over the brim of her eyelids and her shoulders shook!

"Then I may come back?" Mr. Molnar asked contritely.

"How can you ask that, Father?" Ted interrupted the touching scene of the reunion of his parents with: "I have found somebody else, too!" Quickly he brought Lena into the room.

Lena's presence gave Mrs. Molnar a distinct shock—she was tongue-tied. "Now!" she thought desperately. "What will happen now?"

Outwardly she appeared calm and pleased. "Lena, this is a surprise. How are you?"

Lena hesitated as all eyes turned on her, when Ted said, "She is going to stay and have dinner with us."

"Oh," said Mrs. Molnar, at sea to know what to do. "Are delighted to have you, Lena!" (To be continued)

Child Swallows Penny, Doctor Works Swiftly

Quick action on the part of Dr. U. S. Abbott, who dislodged a penny stuck in the throat of Gerald Jones, 18 month old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Jones of 433 Nineteenth street, probably saved the life of the young man.

The baby swallowed a penny recently which instead of going down the regulation channel, stuck in the windpipe. His grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Alloro found the infant strangling to death and called Dr. Abbott.

The doctor, after dislodging the penny, rushed the baby to the Hospital Richmond, where the fluoroscope, a machine more powerful than the X-ray, was brought into use.

With the aid of this instrument, attendants are carefully watching the coin. The child is pronounced out of danger.

NEW EVIDENCE MAY REOPEN TAYLOR CASE

likely that the murder case will be reopened by Los Angeles authorities and that evidence, allegedly suppressed eight years ago, will be related in court for the first time.

It was the youthful negro, Peavey, who charged that only part of his story was told to the coroner's jury which investigated the death of Taylor.

"They made me afraid," he said. "Who do you mean by 'they'?" he was asked.

"The district attorney's office," he answered.

Peavey went to Sacramento a short time after the Taylor murder and was befriended by Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn, J. C. Carly, president of an investment company, and others.

Tell Same Story

For three years he was a cook in the Carly home and Carly told the United Press today that Peavey had told him the same general story he related to the United Press and to Dr. Thomas Filben, executive secretary of the California Law Enforcement league.

"I worked for Mr. Taylor eight months," the young negro said, "but I never stayed at his home. I came in the morning and fixed his breakfast and left at night after dinner had been served."

"I went to Mr. Taylor's house about 7 p. m. the night he was killed," Peavey said in response to direct questioning.

"I wanted to check out for the day but before I could open the door I heard loud voices. A woman was scolding Mr. Taylor. She was angry."

"Who was the woman?" he was asked.

He named the same motion picture star whom Hefner said he saw leaving the Taylor home early the morning after the murder, just before Edward Sands, formerly employed by Taylor, was said to have found the body.

The Hefner story alleged that he was mixed up with Sands and Taylor in a Southern California dope ring and that Sands was delivering narcotics to Taylor the morning the body was found.

Entertain Women

Peavey knew nothing of drug dealings, he said, but admitted that Taylor entertained women frequently, and that on such occasions he always left when dinner was served.

The young negro probably will be one of the star witnesses if the Taylor case is reopened by Fitts. Three times he has told his story, it was learned this week, and despite the elapse of many months between each telling, his facts were the same.

Dr. Thomas Filben, who befriended Peavey, first heard the story. Then the negro told it to Carly a few months after he entered the Carly household as a cook. The third time was early today when he was found, after having been missing for many months, and interviewed by the United Press.

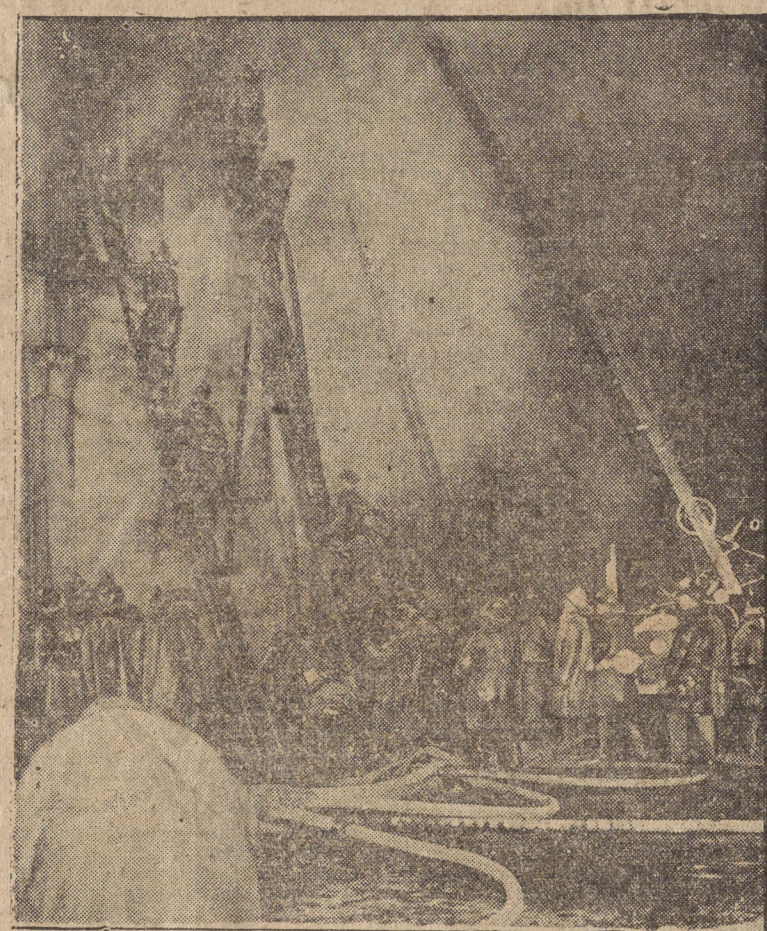

Willing To Appear

Both Peavey and Hefner expressed willingness to appear as witnesses if District Attorney Fitts so desires, but Hefner, of working hard to support his family, would rather avoid doing so, if possible.

"I'll tell them the whole story," Peavey exclaimed. "They won't stop me the next time," he said, referring to the quarrel he overheard between Taylor and a motion picture star the night the doctor was killed, which was not a part of his testimony during the coroner's inquest.

For a long time it has been thought that three men held the "key" to the Taylor murder mystery. With Peavey and Hefner available as witnesses, the search for Sands, a fugitive, is now underway.

Among other things, a warrant is on file against Sands for burglary. He was last heard of at Vera Cruz, Mexico, where, according to Hefner, he was supposedly directing the shipping of narcotics to the United States.

SANDS NAMED SLAYER BY KEYES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—UP—The search for Edward Sands, wanted here for questioning in the William Desmond Taylor murder, gained new impetus today.

Chief of Police Roy Steckel announced that as the first move in the new hunt a revised bulletin describing the missing valet would be dispatched to police departments all over the world.

Sands, a known narcotics peddler, assertedly forged his name to dozens of the director's checks while the latter was in Europe but he was not prosecuted of the charge.

Sands was known to have seen Taylor shortly before the slaying, probably on the same day.

Asa Keyes, then district attorney for Los Angeles, and since convicted on moral bribery charges, was quoted as having said that he believed Sands murdered Taylor.

The new bulletin issued by the police department today after the United Press had located two witnesses in the case, Otis Hefner and Henry Peavey, said:

"We hold warrants on charges of grand larceny, felonies, for the arrest of Edward P. Sands. We also have burglary charges against him and suspect him of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, in the city of Los Angeles on the evening of Feb. 1, 1922."

"Please arrest and hold this man without bail until officers can be sent for him."

Police Probe Dog Poisoning

An investigation into the poisoning of a dog and the disappearance of another dog was started yesterday by Richmond police.

Mrs. M. Center, of 29 Nevada street, reported to police that one of her dogs disappeared Monday night and the second was found dead yesterday morning. It was found that the dog had died of poisoning.

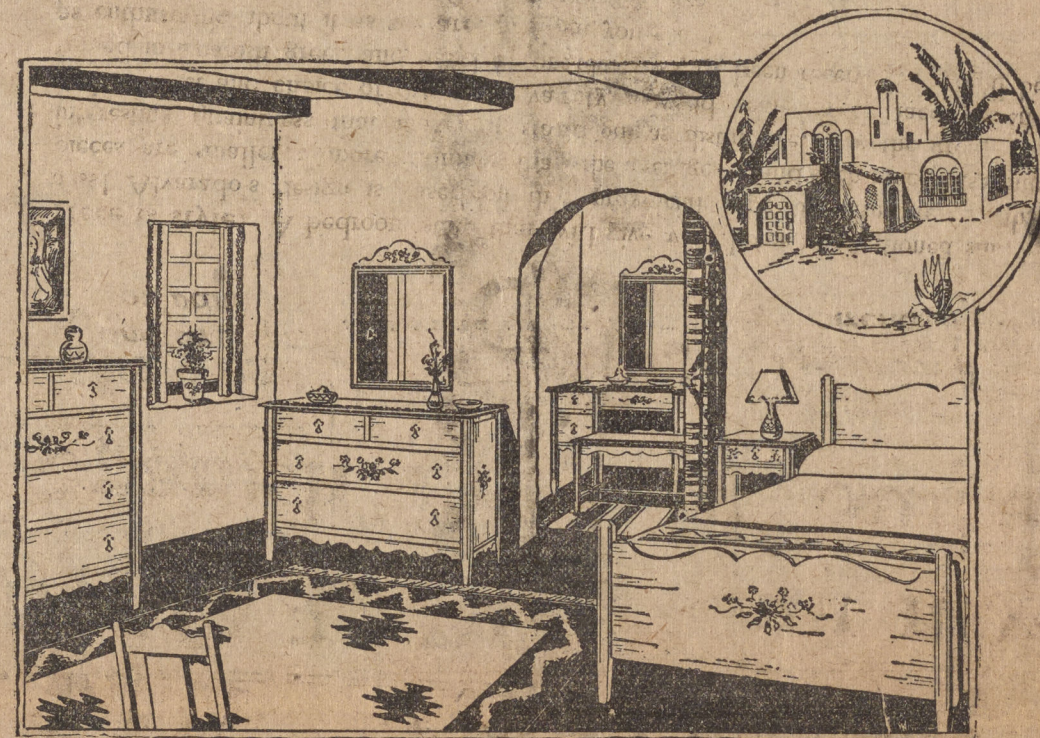

The second dog returned home last night and was given emergency treatment for fear that it had been poisoned.
